The SDG News Monitor provides easy, user-friendly visualization of the content daily fed into the Covalence EthicalQuote database, an index running since 2002 and including more than 1'000'000 news items from over 40'000 sources regarding 3400 large companies. Users can view data and charts, zoom and focus on the topics of their choice. All charts are interactive: one can click on bars and zones to filter the data – this filter is then applied to every chart on the page.

Filters can be operated by SDGs, Sentiment (positive / negative), Time period, Active companies and sectors, Topics, Subtopics, Keywords, Countries of action, Materiality, Stakeholders, as well as by source, type of source and country of source. A data table allows to view headlines and URLs to access original articles. The color of bars represents the ratio positive news / total news. A green bar indicates a majority of positives, and a red bar a majority of negatives. If the bar is white, it means there are equal quantities of positives and negatives.
